

Daily Activities Report Feb 4th

CPOs

- Emailed Action [REDACTED] After submitting yesterday's Engagement Log. Follow up
- Exchanged emails with [REDACTED] - Appreciates OPS work. Situation manageable. Hotel one of most secure in City as per PIERCE
- Forwarded L1 updates from [REDACTED] to Ottawa Security Network (OSN) - OSN is comprised of security directors and managers mainly in Downtown Core
- Phone call with [REDACTED] spent some time in crowd. Shared info. Mall closed until at least Monday
- Exchanged texts with [REDACTED] Store will be closed over the weekend. To be reevaluated Sunday
- Virtual meeting coordinated by Councilor Fleury - Market BIA, Rideau BIA, Rideau Centre amongst others on call. Supt. Zackrias also on to answer questions/concerns. Issues: Concern for confrontation with counter-protests; Gas & propane being brought in; Lack of clear communication from City & OPS on what BIAs and members should expect.
- Communication with [REDACTED] Follow up/Ongoing communication
- We have continued to meet with residents on Cooper St, and their concerns about Kent St. Multiple residents are expressing their extreme concern about there being no access for emergency vehicles on Kent St, as well as the sheer number of jerry cans of fuel. One resident indicated that most trucks left last evening around 9pm and that Kent St was open to traffic, however it appears it is again blocked today. Residents on Cooper were looking to organize a "take back our street" event, however they were advised by myself and Sgt McNeil that this may pose a safety risk.
- Call to [REDACTED] regarding her email to OPS, sent down to me by Superintendent Zackrias, about her daughter, who is a BIPOC community member. [REDACTED] indicated to me that she is afraid for her daughter's safety and was concerned that her daughter was brought to tears after seeing a local coffee shop on Elgin St vandalized. I reached out to [REDACTED] daughter, and she told me that she is fine and that her mom may have over-reacted by calling police about this. I offered my contact information to her in the event she needed anything
- 22-29545 – [REDACTED] – We checked in with this daycare in response to a complaint we received from Councilor [REDACTED]'s office regarding the noise and inappropriate messaging on the trucks part on the street. We spoke to staff and the noise is no longer a problem, and they feel safe. No other problems.
- I reached out to [REDACTED] in response to watching CTV news last evening about how their clients are being affected by this protest. The manager was happy for police support and will be reaching out on Monday of addresses that they would like us to attend to talk to staff/clients.
- 22-29607 – The [REDACTED] – Staff indicated that their numbers are down because clients are having problems accessing the services. Staff indicated that some protesters have attended the drop-in for food but have been respectful in abiding by the mask mandates. I called one of their clients who we have been trying to build a relationship with (she is terrified of police), just to check in and make sure she is doing ok. She says she is fine, she has someone buying and delivering her groceries to her but otherwise is not going outside.

- 22-29633 – [REDACTED] – met with management to check in on how they are doing. We again offered supports to those experiencing any harassment or problems with the protest.
- 22-29582 – [REDACTED] staff and owner have experienced hate-related harassment (including Anti-Asian and homophobic sentiment) toward them. We spoke to staff and my business card was provided. A voicemail was left for the owner to connect with me.
- 22-29668 – [REDACTED] – The manager reached out to OPS through social media regarding ongoing harassment of staff in the restaurant of anti-maskers. We checked the restaurant and it is closed. I have left a message for the manager to call me.
- Been in contact with Bank St BIA – providing more information regarding Make the Right Call.
- The majority of the complaints we are now fielding from community members who live in the Centretown area is the concern of getting emergency vehicles to where they need to access emergencies. One building had a fire alarm earlier in the week and a fire truck could not access the front of the building, and had to access the backside. Further, there is a great concern over the evening bonfires mixed with fireworks being let off in the direct vicinity of jerry cans full of fuel.
- I just spoke to one officer who, despite the SRO program not existing anymore, still keeps in contact with one school. He was informed that one family who lives in Centretown has been put up in a hotel by the school board as their child has not slept in 5 days and the lack of sleep has affected his ability to concentrate at school

Today myself and Stephanie conducted another rounds of outreach and among them was re-attending [REDACTED] where we've met with approximately 30 residence of that building who shared the following concerns/feedbacks;

- Some of the trucks are equipped with train horns and are constantly blasting their horns
- Some of the residence measured the noise level with their phones and reported higher decibels
- The residences noticed the truckers are sounding their horns between 1-6
- Some residence stated due to the noise level, they are unable to work from home let alone go to work
- Some residences reported taking sick leave due to the constant noise level
- Due to safety concerns, some of the female residences stated they haven't left home for a week
- Demonstrators are setting off fireworks throughout the night
- Residences stated they feel paranoid about everything and anything that resembles demonstrators including contractors who come for repairs
- They reported lost of trust for police
- Some residence who are hill staffers are afraid to go to work
- Is there an exit strategy?
- From the public's perspective, it feels like police are just maintaining the status quo

- What strategies are in place to prevent from more trucks coming into the down town core?
- Some residence said Ottawa no longer feels like the nation's capital
- We don't feel police will protect us
- Some stated the longer this continues, we will see residences taking matters into their own hands
- One of the father's stated he took his son outside and was called child abuser for putting mask on his son
- Some residence stated, this is not only inflicting emotional stress, its putting residence financial stress as well
- One residence shared a private conversation she had with another residence of suicide thoughts. (support/services was offered to residence)
- After actively listening to the pain and suffering expressed by the residence, we reassured the residence of police commitment to their safety as well informed them everything that was shared today will be documented and passed along to the chain of command. At the end, the residence appreciated our willingness to be there for them and hoped something positive will come out of the meeting. Before departing from the building, the organizer informed us of other building residences wanting to hold similar meeting for their respective buildings which we agree to attend. By all measures this was a success gathering where police and the residence engaged in a meaningful dialogue
